Kathleen Kilbourne has designed and led women’s retreats for over 15 years. From spiritual “day spas” on Martha’s Vineyard to seaside convocations in the Bahamas, from mountain top gatherings in the Blue Ridge Mountains to congregations gathered in churches across the country, women have come to appreciate her presentations of passionate and perceptive faith tested by life experience and shared from the heart.

After receiving her undergraduate degree in Christian Education from Pfeiffer University and her Masters from Appalachian State University, Kathleen served in churches for over 20 years as an educator with a primary focus in youth ministry, adult and family life. Rev. Kilbourne is an ordained deacon of the United Methodist Church and since 1997 has been the Director of the Master of Arts in Christian Education degree program for Pfeiffer University on their Charlotte North Carolina campus. In 2006, Kathleen also became the Director of the Center for Deacon Education, a partnership between Pfeiffer’s School of Religion and Wesley Theological Seminary.

Kathleen and her husband, singer/storyteller and folk theologian, Ed Kilbourne make their home in the country near Rock Hill, SC and in Englewood, Florida.
